

THE BANKS MUST COLLECT LOANS

STATE BANK COMMISSIONER NOTIFIES STATE BANKS THAT THEY MUST COLLECT ALL OUTSTANDING LOANS

"The facts that you have to consider your operations in the future to the volume of your own business is very apparent. The present necessity is to pay your borrowed obligations, which I insist that you do."

This is one paragraph of a letter Fred G. Dennis, State Bank Commissioner, addressed last week to the State bankers of Oklahoma. Sneaking to the bankers generally on present conditions, the letter Mr. Dennis sends out says in part:

"For the last eighteen months the banks in Oklahoma have redoubled heavily to meet demands made on them by their customers. This has brought about a like condition with banks in reserve cities, as well as with the Federal Reserve Bank."

"You can not expect a renewal of this obligation, so to make good the deficit which has been created in our national financial affairs, you must make good on your promise. To do this you must collect from the individual who promised to pay on the maturity of this crop, and this you must do."

"I fully appreciate the shrinkage in prices and the discontent that it has caused, but that is a matter over which you have no control. Your part in this work is to relieve the situation according to your promise, and the only way you can do so is to collect on your loans."

THE FACTS ABOUT IT

Politics is bandying the word "Marine" in an unpleasant fashion. It has come about this way:

George Barnett for years was commandant of the Marine Corps. He commanded the corps during the war. A young soldier named Lejeune led the gallant sea soldiers in France, and after the coming of peace, Secretary of the Navy Daniels rewarded him by making him commandant of the corps. Barnett was given the alternative of retiring as major general, or accepting a brigadiership in the corps he once commanded. Naturally the action of Mr. Daniels didn't help any toward keeping relations between himself and General Barnett on a particularly friendly basis.

Suddenly, in the heat of the presidential campaign, the Republican candidate startled the country by his charges involving the Marines which have been policing Haiti. The Harding administration were denied by the Secretary of the Navy, and this denial in turn was followed by a sensational report by Brigadier-General Barnett charging indiscriminate killing of Haitian natives.

The truth in the entire affair now has come out: Haitian natives were killed without fair trial, shot down by American Marines, acting upon the order of a superior officer. That officer was a madman.

It is disgraceful that politics should permit the breeding of maliciousness such as that which has characterized some of the accusations against the United States Marine. The country that thrived to the exploits of the Devil Dogs when they went into Belleau Wood must not and will not permit these charges to go unwarred.

Secretary Daniels acted wisely when he ordered an investigation of the Haitian charges. He spoke wisely when he said that "a wanton attack upon their (the Marines') record is a wanton attack upon American citizens."—Dearborn Independent.

A REAL AUTHORITY

Little Nelly told little Anita what she terms "only a little fib."

Anita—"A fib is the same as a story, and a story is the same as a lie."

Nelly—"No, it's not."

Anita—"Yes, it is, because my father is a professor at the university."

Nelly—"I don't care if he is. My father is an editor, and he knows more about lying than your father."
